Book Suggestion

In preparation for the retreat, Daniel Bagby suggests reading Let Your Life Speak by Parker Palmer.

About Let Your Life Speak:

Most of us have been taught to think that finding our vocation will be a Herculean effort of will and perseverance. We stretch toward some imagined goal and fret when presented with obstacles. In this incredibly persuasive and illuminating book, Palmer presents his own pilgrimage toward selfhood and vocation. For him, the heart of this journey involves both listening and discernment: "Vocation is not a goal to be achieved but a gift to be received."

Palmer has many profound things to say about the deep calling of authentic selfhood, burnout, embracing mystery, the power of true presence, the soul's truths, the inner issues inherent in leadership, the spiritual journey inward and downward, and the different seasons of life.

2015 Fall Retreat

Faith formation and practices for spiritual growth are the focus of this fellowship retreat planned by the WSBC Adult Education Committee. In surveys and conversations among members and friends, the need for spiritual growth and renewal has surfaced many times.

Join us as we explore new possibilities to strengthen our faith and reclaim practices that will guide our Christian journey as individuals and as participants in the church and in the broader community.

Leader for Fall Retreat

Dr. Daniel G Bagby

Daniel Bagby is Professor of Pastoral Care at the Baptist Theological Seminary at Richmond in Virginia and Minister of Pastoral Care at River Road Baptist Church. Born in Brazil, son and grandson of missionaries there, Dan's roots reach deeply into Baptist soil. Dan has pastored for 26 years in Virginia, Indiana, and Texas. He has served as chaplain in various situations, including a juvenile detention center, a mental hospital, and a women's prison unit. Daniel has authored several books relating to pastoral care and the church.
